I think that the antitrust settlement is very sufficient and enough resources have been wasted on this case. I, as a consumer, do not feel hampered by Microsoft at all. Many companies have chances to enter markets or come up with competing operating systems or browsers and beat Microsoft at their own war. They haven't. This settlement will allow the government to settle their needs and prove they didn't waste valuable taxpayer money and it will remind Microsoft that they are still the best and why everyone wants to take them down.
